

Ease of manufacturing was paramount during the design process. This was made possible using a die cut pattern.

If a pair of shoes is needed but a stamped pattern could not be obtained the user could follow these instructions to create their own shoes.

