

Savannah Roundhouse Museum Children's Exhibits

This project was in response to Roundhouse's decision to preserve a building on their property and turn it into a Children's Museum branch. They presented a need for modular play areas for use during construction phases. The goal became to create three different options with the needs of children to play and learn and the needs of the museum to store and maintain taken into consideration. These drawings were created with AutoCad, Photoshop, and mostly hand sketching. The end result was a collection of functional and fun play areas presented to the Roundhouse design team.
