

Arrow Kites

material: rip-stop nylon, sail tape, dowels, string

A set of kites with graphic red arrows. Each arrow points in a different direction, reminding the viewer of all the different paths they can take, potentially influencing their direction. Photographs show 3 of 20 prototypes being flown at the Burning Man Art Festival. Part of an interactive exhibit where viewers are encouraged to find the source of the arrows and fly the kites themselves. Joint project with Christian Cerrito.