ASK THE CONTRACTOR: MOTHER IN LAW SUITE

By S.J. Janis Company, Inc.

Question:

My husband and I are in the discussion of having his mother move in with us versus assisted living or home health care. His mother is willing to pay for the expansion of our home as opposed to a less comfortable assisted living arrangement that is very costly. We have room to build and are wondering what other homeowners have done in the same situation.

Answer:

In-law suites are becoming more popular due to the increased aging population and the high expense of assisted living and nursing home care. Northwestern Long Term Care Insurance Company recently reported that the cost of home health care annually is approximately $80,000 and assisted living is annually $50,000. The staggering annual cost alone is enough for people to consider an in-law suite. The other pro is the ability to stay in the comfort of their family's home while also investing their money into the family's assets.

Before making any big decisions, there are a few things to take in consideration. First, determine who will be responsible for the cost of the in-law suite. Is this a shared cost? What is a realistic budget? Redesigning an
