Force Protection, Stopping Terrorism In Its Tracks

The haunting specter of terrorism is on the rise - unexpected, pervasive in nature and random in thought and execution.

Acknowledging this disturbing reality, the U.S. Air Force acted swiftly and decisively to address the far-reaching effects of global terrorism, forestalling potential disaster at its worldwide air bases.

A top priority to immediately upgrade installations in Southwest Asia with a Tactical Automated Security System (TASS) took precedence. To accomplish this expediently, the Air Force turned to a large, trusted company that understands and excels in security systems... a pioneering technology and systems integration leader... TRW.

With a past history of Most Trusted Contractor and Customer Service Awards for Excellence, the Electronic Systems Center (ESC) of the Air Force was justifiably confident in TRW's ability to come through under urgent time constraints and demanding system requirements.

And the team did that and more, exceeding expectations. Operating with virtually no lead time, the TASS Team, headed by TRW, rolled out the first truckload of equipment heading for Southwest Asia 104 days from the contract award.

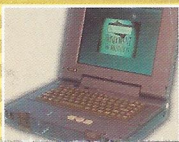

Through all of this, the TASS Team achieved significant improvements in producibility and functionality, while raising the level of equipment survivability under the rigors of a hostile military environment.

Security systems from TRW. Because terrorism knows no boundaries.
