PHONE

“Phone” it is a mixture of two different concepts together. Before doing this project I thought that it could be interesting or even funny to mix two different objects and see what can be born from it. It was something closer to a game which I could develop some freak things from. I chose a lamp and a shower. I was not really interested in incorporating lights into the shower. There are many projects which play with light and water. So I focused myself trying to make an object which emulates a shower but being in fact a light. It would be like a shower of light.

The dull switch evokes to a tap's handle, in that way as you can ration the amount of light which is coming out as you would do in the shower. Also the base is made of ceramic and the head of the light is like a shower.
