

CYCLOPS

EXPRESSION

Cyclops, a race bred to be warriors, dumb ones, have no experience with the any form of sports, leaving Miphill Bonebreaker, somewhat a little helpless. Nonetheless having born with a rare magical strength, he is able to lift mountains blinking an eye. His large right arm that has an invulnerable armor allows him to apply supernatural force on his enemy. He cans harness his strength to produce shock wave that quakes the land.

Being a natural warrior, he reaches into his own aggression to fuel his magical strength during battles, making him unstoppable. His savage but stupid mind often causes him to rush into battle without any plans or tactics which made every match prone to having own fellow teammates turning on each other with outbursts of fiery. Even though it would mean that other races might take advantage and score in such a game as monster rugby but often than not when it happens, these Cyclops made such a mess that the game could hardly be played, at least not by the rules, not that there were much rules to begain with.
