

First Full-Scale Model

The shape invites employees to use the space and pulls them into the conversation. As users come together the sense of privacy is created. This design brings co-workers together and accommodates up to six colleagues at a time.

The table is at bar height, to accommodate the five to ten minute meeting. Having the table at this height prevents the users from “living” in this space.

