

A wide-angle landscape photograph showing a person standing on a rocky outcrop on the right side of the frame. The person is looking out over a large, partially frozen body of water in the foreground. The water is dark and reflective, with large, flat, white ice floes scattered across its surface. In the background, a steep, rugged mountain rises, its slopes covered in patches of snow and exposed brown and grey rock. The sky is not visible, as the mountain fills the upper portion of the image. The overall mood is serene and expansive.

WHERE THE SPIRIT LEADS THE FEET WILL FOLLOW.
DOWN DISTANT PATHS FOR UNMAPPED MILES. HEADS
FORGET BUT HEARTS REMEMBER:

THE ART OF LIVING KNOWS NO BOUNDS.