Medical documentation solutions that maximize clinician efficiency while reducing documentation costs

In today's fast-paced clinical environment — where EHR adoption has the main stage, where the need for analytics is at an all time high, where time is money — it can be a struggle to balance personal, engaged patient care with the need to work faster. Healthcare providers are challenged to add electronic documentation to their workflow without negatively impacting the patient-doctor interaction or impeding productivity. Although effective as a data repository, EHRs have yet to attain the user satisfaction and efficiency of traditional documentation methods. Mobile dictation solutions that complement EHR adoption can help to bridge the gap between provider and facility needs.

Emdat's focus has always been to create sophisticated technology designed to refine the document creation process while guarding the richness of the clinical narrative and supporting regulatory initiatives. More than 20,000 providers trust Emdat to provide flexible, user-friendly and cost effective solutions that streamline workflow and "work the way they work." Clients such as Illinois Bone & Joint Institute, Northwestern Medical Faculty Foundation, Children's Hospital of Los Angeles and University of Southern California have successfully implemented our solutions to maximize clinician and administrative productivity while significantly reducing documentation costs.
