Innovative New Concepts in Implant Dentistry: Bone Level and CAD/CAM Technology

This program will provide an overview of the appropriate indications and prosthetic applications for dental implant patients. A wide variety of restorative options will be presented from the fully edentulous patient to those missing single or multiple teeth. Topics that will be discussed include treatment planning for esthetic success and an overview of the restoration process with corresponding prosthetic component options. Participants will learn how to place abutments and recognize the different techniques and components required for implant-level and abutment-level impressions. The training session will demonstrate the advantages of Straumann® tissue-level and bone-level restorative platforms for providing clinicians an easy transition into implant dentistry. Participants of this program will understand how to assimilate restorations supported by dental implants into their practice with predictability and confidence.

Upon completion of this course, the participant will be able to:

- Recognize the scientific and clinical evidence supporting dental implants as a solution for missing teeth
- Explain and identify new technology in implant dentistry
- Identify restorative components as related to implant dentistry
- Understand the treatment planning process for single-tooth and multiple-tooth restorations
- Understand features and benefits of the LOCATOR® Implant Attachment System for implant-supported dentures
- Select the appropriate abutment for esthetic restorations
