

GARDEN STYLE

Traditional designs do well among the flowers. Garden Style marries delicate florals with the grungy side of gardening. Small space sets will be particularly stylized, while larger sets more traditional. Pieces that have weathered well with time will be the best, adding character to the outdoor space. Textured finishes and shaded colors will be popular choices for this style category. Industrial accents and wrought iron pieces are a charming compliment to soft petal pinks and curling design elements. Trellis and plant patterns, birds and nature are all motifs in this category. The garden gnome is even making an appearance. Mixing and matching pieces in a configuration is yet again a smart way to catch consumer attention.

THE BENCH

Benches are breaking into the market. Traditional styles have always been a popular addition to the garden, and now they will become more prevalent in other design styles.

FERNS AND FLOWERS

Every variation of green and red that resembles flower petals and things that grow make up this color palette. Yellows and some purples add variation. Whites, browns and rusts decorate frames.
