

BENCH DESIGN

This bench was designed to give a lifted or floating feeling to something that is rigid and sturdy. With the acrylic put in between the outside and inside layers there is a nice slick line that is carried throughout the entire length. The curve from the side view is intended to give the bench a feeling of movement. The bench is an A-symmetrical balance that is constantly pushing and pulling with a person's idea of gravity and weightlessness.

