EMERGE is a web based publishing company that aims to educate the public about green design and sustainable solutions as well as aid consumers and designers in finding the most sustainable and economically safe processes, materials, and uses for products and construction. Emerge is a work space that is dedicated to team work but also accommodates independent work areas. The versatile conference room provides a space for meetings as well as an area for outside companies to pitch their products to Emerge employees. The space will be casual, inspiring, and colorful as well as efficient and user friendly.

The sustainable products and processes that Emerge educates consumers and professionals about will be employed in the design of their office spaces by using low-impact materials, choosing products with cleaner production processes, maximizing energy and water efficiencies, and designing for waste minimization. It will inspire employees to develop solutions to answer problems and educate people about sustainable solutions for the design life cycle.
