

Three Possible Paths

Concepts that focus on the user's visual and physical interaction

The final concept translates the components valued in the previous concepts. It has a two sided display, and features a static electricity charging method that requires less effort than physically winding the watch each time to display the time.

