

mobile versatility

architecture students are always on the move, traveling from school to the project site to home. depending on the situation, the V-PAC's straps can be configured in multiple orientations for differing accessibility options and needs.

backpack style cargo carrier shoulder strap configuration integrated "on - the - go" handle belt mounted sketch scroll a swivel digital projector lens is exposed at all times for quick and easy projection of project proposals presentation

with an integrated digital projector, the architecture student of the future can propose a design in large format whenever and wherever needed measure and photograph architecture students are constantly photographing and measuring sites and buildings. with the detachable digital camera / laser measuring tape he/she can quickly and efficiently record all necessary data.

laser tape measuring system activation button

touch sensitive display screen / control interface

