

A cross section of the space within the pavilion illustrates its relationship to the existing ideas of movement. The interweave of paths continues into the housing unit where the space formed between becomes dwellings units.

To the south side, the outer glazing serves as a second skin, and directs lower cool air into the volume.

Long Section

Plans