PROJECT SUMMARY

After over ten-year civil war, the Republic of Angola is in enthusiasm for its reconstruction. While there are plenty of space for new buildings, and tolerance for new concepts, there are also many critical post-war issues required to be considered at the aspects of introducing living mode and treating the psychological wound from war. As requested by our client, the new hotel should be a fully functional hotel building complying with the local building code, cultural character and climate particularity. At the same time, the client is also expecting his hotel to be recognized as a landmark in the local community.
