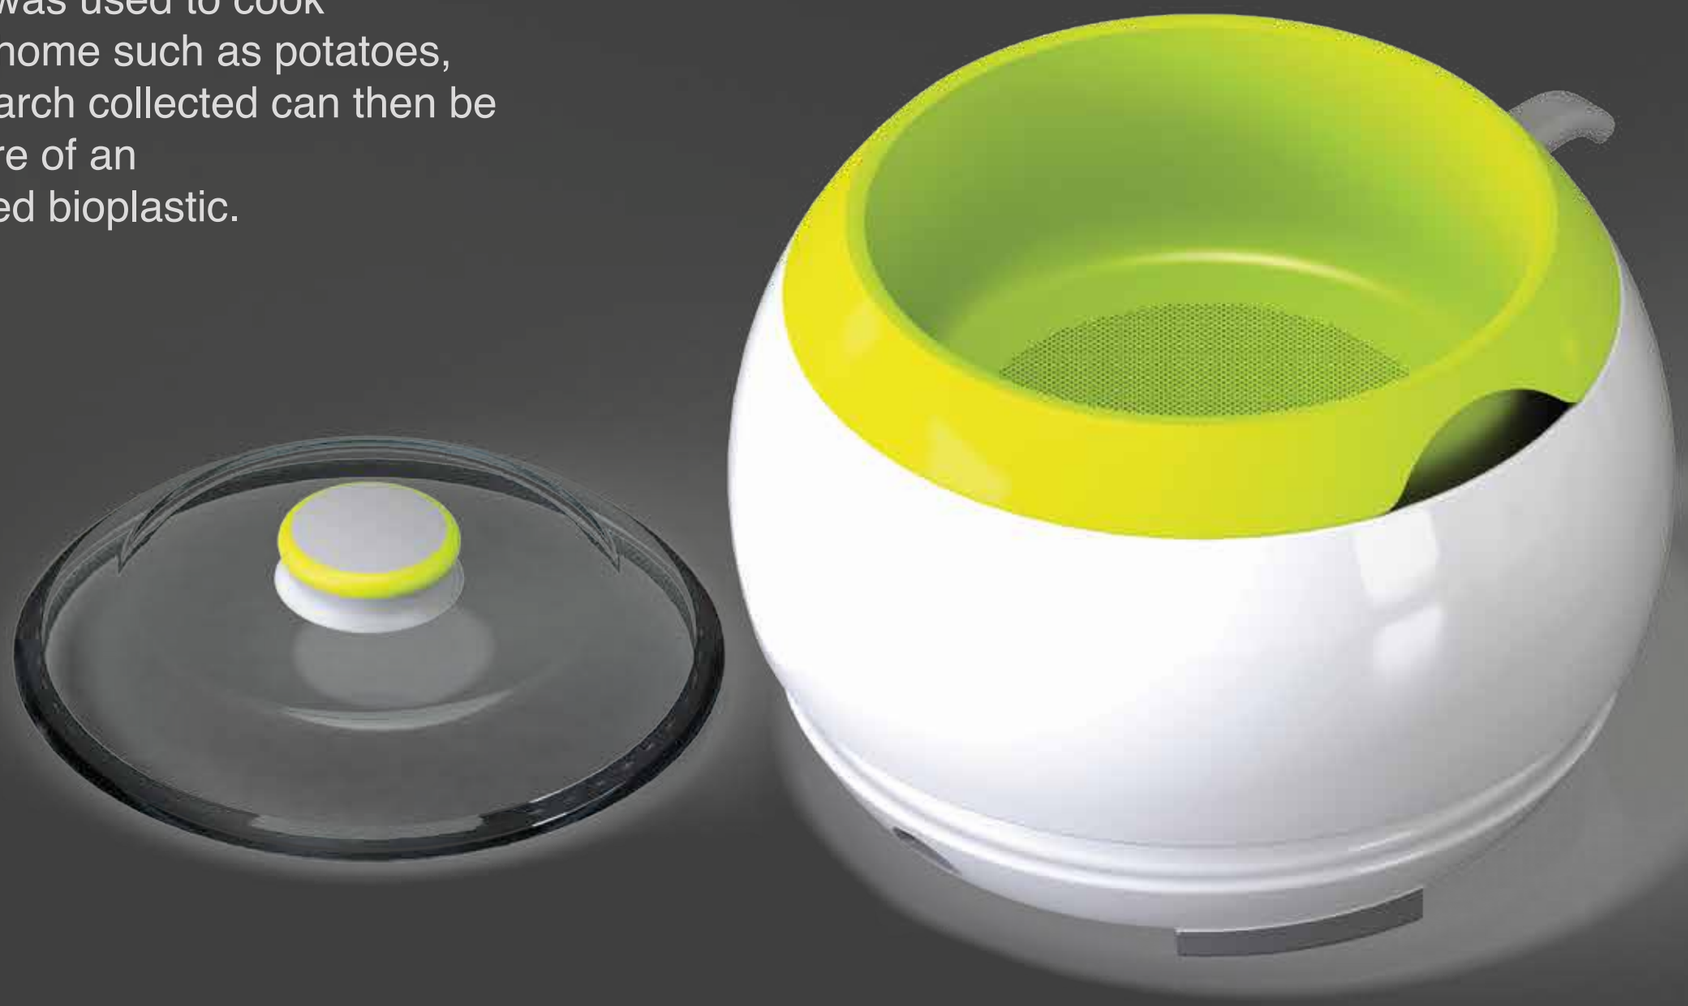
Awarded the Frank Fisher Sustainability Prize 2014

Amelo

Home Starch Harvester


The Amelo is a product designed to get people thinking about the byproducts of daily life and how this can be harvested and utilised in making something useful. The Amelo harvests starch from waste water that was used to cook starch-based foods at home such as potatoes, pasta, and rice. The starch collected can then be used in the manufacture of an environmentally-sourced bioplastic.