

Returning home for the Thanksgiving holiday, the last thing University of Wisconsin-Eau Claire freshman Sarah Sommersby expects to find is her parents brutally murdered. With no other living relatives, she turns to her college family of friends for solace and support only to discover the killer has followed her back to the campus. As the body count grows around her, Sarah realizes that she is not the hunted but rather the bait and desperately tries to determine the killer's ultimate goal, deathly afraid that before she can she will run out of time, or worse...friends.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Along with his wife and two children, he lives in Eau Claire, Wisconsin where he was born and raised. Nestled along the banks of the Chippewa and Eau Claire Rivers, Eau Claire is a typical, middle-sized midwestern city where nothing really happens but thankfully, anything could.
