T-SHIRT DESIGN

About Us:

KOBK:

The Company

KOBK stands for Kill Or Be Killed. It is a reference the original skiboard movie Two Plank Knuckle Draggers. Our motto is "Know Your Roots" and we live by it heavily.

Tim Miller:

Founder/Owner/ Designer

Tim lives in Seattle, WA and is an avid skiboarder last year at the open he took home an award. He is the leader of the "know your roots" movement that is about to be taking place in the skiboarding community.

Dennis Evans:

Designer (collaboration)

Dennis lives in Stark County, Ohio and is a design student at Stark State College. He has done many designs for many people. This is his first major project and thanks Tim greatly for having him aboard. He has been skiboarding for 4 years and is an instructor at the local ski resort.

Products:

Block

This design stems from the mind of Dennis Evans. The design is that of a simple custom font turned 3 dimensional. The two rectangles to the right of the "P" are representative of skiboards in both length and width but not shape.

Viva La Revolution

Simple design based off the color scheme of old Russian propaganda posters and a modernized version of the fist used in many popular designs today.

Drops

Not much we can say about this one, it's kind of self explanatory. It's just a custom font with drop-lets coming off the letters. The letters, like the snow at the end of a great season, are melting.
