PET BEHAVIOR AND TRAINING SERVICES VOLUNTEER

The reward of sending an owner and pet home as better companions is the best satisfaction

PBTS (Pet Behavior & Training Services) in Dayton is looking for volunteers to help with dog Obedience classes and/or behavior counseling.

No prior knowledge or experience is required – all relevant training is provided by PBTS. The only requirement is a love of pets and a few hours to spare each month.

The time commitment is typically an hour or so each week for obedience training and/or one Saturday afternoon each month for behavior counseling.

The rewards are awesome:

- Improve your knowledge and understanding of pet behavior and psychology.
- Free obedience classes and counseling for volunteers and their pets.
- The joy and satisfaction of helping other people and their pets live happier and more rewarding lives.

In order to teach, you must be ready to learn.

Training Classes

Unlike traditional obedience classes, this program is designed to use basic obedience skills as tools in directing your pet's behavior in a typical home situation (such as playing with family members, being left unsupervised, or greeting strangers).

Classes are designed specifically to meet the special needs of a puppy or adult dog. Emphasis is placed on the special skills needed in the home to establish the best foundation for good adjustment.

Class enrollment is limited to ensure individual attention. Training includes a description of the elements of good training, the patterns of animal behavior, and training objectives. Classes meet one hour per week for six weeks. Classes are offered at a variety of times on weekday evenings and weekends (See Current Class Schedule).

Our goal is to provide you with the skills necessary to meet any current and future demands beyond the classroom.
