Houseboats in Kerala

Traditionally, the houseboats are called Kettuvallam, which means a boat made by tying together pieces of wood. Unbelievable as it may sound, not a single nail is used in the making of a Kettuvallam. Jackwood planks are joined together with coir rope and then coated with black resin made from boiled cashew nut shells. A Kettuvallam usually has one or two rooms with attached bathroom, an open lounge, deck, kitchenette and a crew comprising two oarsmen and a cook. Traditional lanterns are used as lights. Your holiday in this tranquil world will be perfect on our comfortably furnished houseboats. Come and check into a houseboat for a memorable cruise along the backwaters of Kerala!
