

LEHIGH LACROSSE VS. MS

The Lehigh Athletics Department was recently affected by this powerful disease. Head Men's Lacrosse Coach, Chris Wakely decided it was time to step away from coaching after the 2007 season. Coach Wakely was diagnosed with MS in 2003, and has been battling with it ever since.

Roseann Corsi, the director of Lehigh University's C.O.A.C.H Program asked me to design a shirt that could be sold to benefit the M.S Society. Coach Wakely's oldest son, Jack, was also included in the design process.

The shirts were sold all over campus so that students could wear them to the final home game of the 2008 season. The shirts were also sold during the lacrosse game, in which Lehigh was hosting Notre Dame. The game was the largest crowd the Ulrich Sports complex had ever seen.

<http://www.lehighsports.com/news/default.aspx?ArticleId=10210>
http://www3.lehigh.edu/News/V2news_story.asp?iNewsID=2695