

Brad and Angelina:

The fight of their lives!

HE'S A SCARY FOE

Brett, here with the family in India in 2006, has a history of violent acts.

DID BRAD CHEAT ON JEN?

Brett reportedly walked in on an intimate moment between Brad and Angie in 2004, when Brad was still married to Jen.

WHAT COULD BE IN THE TELL-ALL BOOK

ANGIE'S KINKY SIDE

One report says Brett could expose how Angie won Brad over by dressing in latex and using sex toys.

THEIR BIGGEST FIGHTS

"Mickey, more than anyone, has seen Brad and Angie go at it," says an insider.

WHAT THEY'RE REALLY LIKE AS PARENTS

Brett would have the inside story on how Brad and Angie really raise their six kids.

Faced with reports that their ex-bodyguard was planning to reveal their secrets, Brad Pitt and Angelina Jolie battle back!

Brad Pitt and Angelina Jolie have been through a lot together, from a love affair that began when Brad was still married to their travels around the globe with their six kids. Along the way, one man was by their side: trusted bodyguard and confidant Mickey Brett, who protected Brad, Angelina and their children for years.

Now, according to reports, Brett's considering committing the ultimate betrayal. On April 26, New York's Daily News reported receiving a proposal for a tell-all book and TV show based on Brett's work as a bodyguard to the stars. "The main focus of the pitches," the newspaper said, "was Brangelina."

Brett, who was fired in 2008, clearly would have lots to write about. A report earlier this year said he planned to include details of how Brad, 45, and Angie, 33, first hooked up on the set of Mr. & Mrs. Smith in 2004, just three weeks into filming and long before Brad and Jennifer Aniston divorced.

As head of security for the duo, he would also have been a witness to their many knockdown fights and could write about what they're like as parents.

Brad and Angelina's pain

Angelina — who first met Brett in 2001 and was especially close to him — and Brad are both hurt and furious about the potential tell-all. "It's hard to think of a bigger betrayal in Angelina's life than Brett going out and attempting to profit from his time with Angelina and the rest of the family," says an insider close to the actress.

But Brad and Angie aren't planning to let him get the chance. "They knew this was coming and have been planning to defend against it for months," the insider says. "They're certain they're going to come out on top."

Brangelina strike back

Indeed, a lawyer for the couple, Marty Singer, told the Daily News that Brett is a pathological liar. And he's long been a controversial figure: While with the Jolie-Pitts in India in 2006, Brett was arrested for choking a photographer and allegedly hurled racial slurs at parents trying to pick up their kids.

Singer says Brett is bound by a confidentiality agreement that prohibits his writing a tell-all, and Brett may have already backed down. "I'm not writing a tell-all book," he tells Life & Style. "It's not true." Whatever the case, Brad and Angie will continue to fight to protect themselves. "Mickey's seen Angie at her best and her worst," the insider says. "If he did do a tell-all, she'd have the most to lose."
