This year is important for many soccer fans across the globe. The FIFA 2014 World Cup will be an exciting time for many hopefuls, wishing that their country's team can make the final cut. Being hosted in Brazil this year, the tournament favorite to win gets to enjoy home field advantage. While there are many countries that will enter the World Cup only one will walk away with the prestige, the glory, and most importantly, the trophy. Here at Upper Ninety, we have compiled a list of this year's strongest contenders. Several factors went into play when generating each nation's approximate percentage chance of winning the World Cup.
