Pro skiers with fat wallets and glamorous lifestyles are like unicorns. We hear about them a lot, but do they really exist? Most "pros" are like the rest of us, cobbling together an existence that allows for max snow time. Except they've got it down to a science. "When you're really passionate about something," says ski photographer Will Wissman, "you never stop. You find a way to continue." Here, Wissman captures four of his friends-all Utah locals-who are determined to keep skiing as much as they possibly can.
