

REFINEMENT

After choosing the final direction of an extremely portable, three-wheeled walker with an athletic feel, I refined the design by doing many fabric iterations. In order to best understand the stability I made scale and full-scale models including models made from PVC piping heated in the oven until pliable.

