

Appendix E - Screen/Device Design

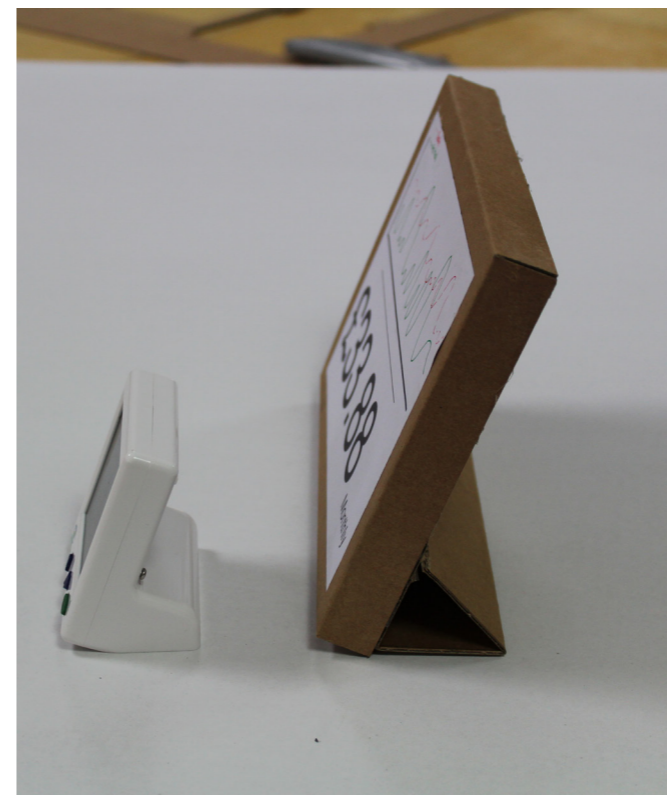

Initial screen design

Initially the screen was sized at roughly the same as an A5 piece of paper. I felt this was a comfortable viewing size which also allowed room for information.

Initial screen design

Lying the screen down made it forgettable. The image on the right shown its the least dominant screen of the 3.

By incorporating the stand, the device now stands alongside the other screens and instantly draws attention.

The angle of the screen is very similar to that of the existing device. From review I found the angle to comfortable for users.

In a similar product re-design by Faye Heslop, She identified that the larger screen on her eco-eye medium was a benefit to the user. This justifies my redesign incorporating a larger screen. [14]
