

The final design can be worn in bands on various locations of the body, as long as skin contact is maintained.

This device can also be inserted into an adhesive device that attaches to the skin.