

Opportunity

Along with the need for more versatile public space down town, the history & location of the Witness Tree landing is advantageous to the project. Also, after the completion of Ernst and Young complex, the site will become a major cut-through for locals and patrons alike.

User

The residents of the Warehouse District are in need of a revitalization in their community. Upon the arrival of industry in the 1900's, the majority of the district residents retreated for the quieter, cleaner suburbs.

Solution

A public space that is not only inviting to the public, but also has a strong underlying theme the carries through in bringing the community together, as well as educates the public on the cities unique heritage.
