

{Investigation} Participatory Design

Thomas Starinsky:

Associate Director of Historic Warehouse District Development Corporation and Historic Gateway Neighborhood Corporation since 2002.

“There’s first space, second space, and third space. First is where you live and second is where you work. Third Space is where people go to be social and interact on an interpersonal level. Third spaces are exactly what the Warehouse District needs.”

By holding a community focus group with the Warehouse District residents, I was able to identify some key factors that the residents wanted in their new public space.

- Water Feature
- Space for Merchants
- Versatile Space
