

Journalism is an essential part in today's society. It allows the world to feel there is someone out there that is fighting to tell the truth. From politics to sports to education there are journalists that are investigating every fact, every lead no matter how small it may seem to the outside world. Journalists are the world's watchdog and they never take a night off.

I plan to make past, current and future journalists proud by always searching for the truth and let nothing get in my way of finding it. Ideally, I would be a sports journalist covering professional sports and not only covering game stories but also find out what goes on off the field in these athletes lives, because that is just as important as the stats. No matter what I end up covering I will leave no stone unturned in my pursuit of the truth.
