

The Rowe is an organization founded by a group of four young individuals from the Los Angeles area. The idea of this organization was to create a work place where individuals could come to work on their different art interests, as well as gather around like-minded people for support and inspiration. The organization helps to teach artists who are interested in learning new medias and also offers studio space to work. The Rowe offers artists a living space in exchange for their services, such as teaching, mentoring aspiring artist, or working in service areas in which help to maintain the facility. The main drive for The Rowe is to create a growing community that supports local artist and art students.
