1 Very minor changes to the home page are required for the 768 resolution. Home is removed from the navigation as the logo will serve as a link to the home page. Blog replaced home in the navigation. 3 columns will still apply with width adjustments required on columns and images within. The social callouts in the footer may also need oriented differently.

1 Left hand navigation will be removed from this template and category selection pulled to a drop down menu for quick access.

2 Category images should remain similar in size and shape that's found on the non-mobile presentation of the site.

3 This should be presented as a secondary footer now that the left hand navigation is removed from this view.

What People Say

I am a house cleaner and discovered this product thru some of my clients. When it came time to buy more Stainless Polish, they would get whatever store brand was handy. I was SO sold on your product and it was so superior to the other brands that I would actually offer to return the off brand for them and replace it with the Weiman product.

1 Left hand navigation will be removed from this template and category selection pulled to a drop down menu for quick access. I've pulled "Tell Us Your Story" from this version because I don't think a ton of people will want to type a story with their tablet. Where To Buy and Buy Online still function the same.

2 Product image should remain similar in size and shape that's found on the non-mobile presentation of the site.

3 Even though the "Buy Online At Mybrands" callout is not currently on the non-mobile version of the site I'm including it here to level out the page. We may pull it during the design process. Looking for suggestions from Weiman if they prefer to show other content in it's place.

1 Find a retailer from the product page should function very similar to what is found on the non-mobile version of the site. Text, drop-downs, product pics and retailer pics should be larger on this resolution than they currently are. Let's add a title to the current window to add some context for the user.

2 Left and right scroll arrows should appear when necessary for product and retailer thumb lists just as they currently do.

1 Removed the left bar from this view and pushed it down as a secondary footer for the coupons template. All existing body content and imagery can remain the same but should be optimized for this resolution.

2 Need some design element in the Shop For Weiman header to pull shop online and WTB callouts together.

1 Removed the left bar from this view and pushed it down as part of the right side column below quick tips. Most quick tips are much shorter than the general tips content so this should conserve space and still keep coupons relatively high on the page and in view.
