1 few changes to the home page are required(from 640) for the 480 resolution. I think the way the non-mobile site will fit, but resize to fit.

2 Check out curveline.com for example of layout. I've included a screenshot

3 Nav is further condensed to be symbols and will expand once clicked. Again, similar to curveline.com. Better explained on next page.

Features

Best design of 2012

The International Design Excellence Awards program (IDEA) was established in 1980 by the Industrial Designers Society of America (IDSA) to foster a better understanding of the impact of design excellence on quality of life and the economy.

- 1 When user clicks on 3 lines, top expands to reveal nav. Clicking it again will condense. The bars will never disappear. The page they are on will always be bolded while others are not.
- 2 When user clicks either word Menu or arrow, nab will expand and arrow will turn to point up. User clicks the arrow again to condense. The page they are on will always be bolded while others are not.

1 Left hand navigation will be removed from this template and category selection pulled to a drop down menu for quick access. I've pulled "Tell Us Your Story" from this version because I don't think a ton of people will want to type a story with their tablet. Where To Buy and Buy Online still function the same.

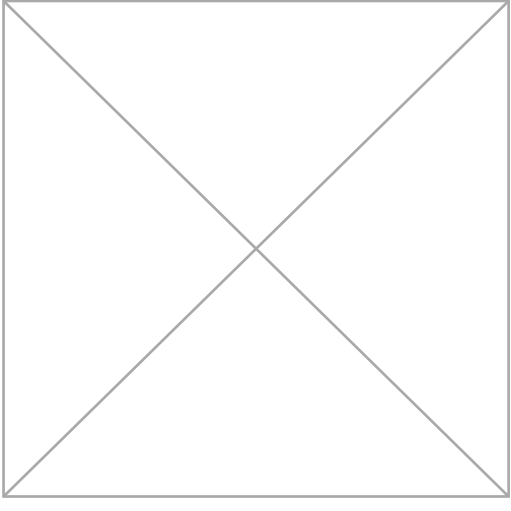

2 Product imagewill need to be resized from the non-mobile presentation of the site. Designer - please keep in mind we'll want this to work if user holds phone vertically (320). We'd like to see design mock-ups before development

3 Even though the "Buy Online At Mybrands" callout is not currently on the non-mobile version of the site I'm including it here to level out the page. We may pull it during the design process. Looking for suggestions from Weiman if they prefer to show other content in it's place.

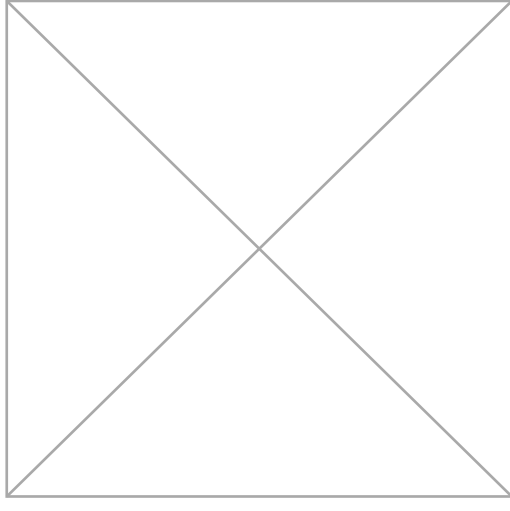

4 I would like to change how the "Where to Buy" button functions. Currently it brings up modal pop-up, can we make it a link to the Where to Buy page? I think that will be easier to navigate from a phone.
