

A photograph of a garden at night. A warm, golden light source, possibly a lamp, is positioned in the upper left, casting a long, bright beam of light across a path of dandelions. The path is filled with numerous dandelions, their heads glowing in the light. To the right of the path is a large, dark, rounded rock. In the background, there are some dark, indistinct shapes that could be trees or other garden features. The overall atmosphere is serene and magical.
