Impotence

Most men experience the effects of impotence at some point in their lives. Stress, fatigue and excessive alcohol consumption are all common reasons why men may find it difficult to achieve an erection. For some men, the problem is persistent, and this can potentially damage their confidence and their relationships.

Thankfully, the outlook for men with erectile dysfunction has improved dramatically over the last 10 years. There are a number of treatments available through OnlineClinic that can help to ease the problem and help you to enjoy a normal sex life again.

Contraception

Contraception is the most effective way to avoid unplanned pregnancy, so it's important to make sure that the one you are taking is best suited to you. Choose between daily oral contraceptives, contraceptive rings and weekly contraceptive patches. Each of these options offers almost 100% protection against pregnancy with minimal risk of side effects. With the comprehensive information available at OnlineClinic, you can find the contraceptive option that is best suited to you.

STIs

Sexually transmitted infections, sometimes referred to as sexually transmitted diseases, are a growing problem in the UK, with rates of infection spreading at sometimes alarming rates. Anyone who engages in sexual activity without taking adequate safety precautions is at risk of STIs. At OnlineClinic, you can find the STI treatment that is best suited to you.
