Director's Note:

I have enjoyed working with these students on All's Well That Ends Well. Defying categorization as either a comedy or tragedy, this black comedy only started receiving regular productions in the last century. It seems to me that the world is finally catching up with this astonishingly contemporary classic. It has been a pleasure to wrestle with the challenges of this play with a dedicated, smart and talented group of actors. Thank you to Mira Kehoe and Sari Ketter for their invaluable contributions to our process. Thanks also to Deb Pearson, who takes care of pretty much everything.
