

Chiltern Railway WC

Whilst on placement at Creative Design I was involved in a project for Chiltern Railway as part of their £5.3 million renovation investment. The idea behind the WC vinyl is to give the passengers creative thought processes a boost, by transforming bog-standard on board toilets into "inspiration stations" that provide a window into a different world. This example represents Compton Verney, an eighteenth century country mansion turned art gallery in Warwickshire. Original Illustrator artwork was created by myself and one other colleague.

Chiltern Railways toilets become 'inspiration stations'

Warwickshire mansion Compton Verney is the inspiration for one train toilet
"Bog-standard" toilets on Chiltern Railways' trains are being transformed with images inspired by places along its main route.

