

Existing contact cases connect the user to the case, but not to the contact lens. Users have difficulty retrieving lens in and out of case. The contact lens folds on their finger, and they drop it on the counter or in the sink.