"For all that are against it and all that are for it, further debate won't change the fact that our government has not only taken a progressive stance on a healthcare but also successfully collaborated with businesses to offer a solution. The majority of us are accountable for our own health choices and life activities, not big business, not schools, not democrats or republicans or extremists or passivists...you can continue to blame drive-throughs, grocery stores, tobacco companies, the wealthy, the poor, the blue collar, white collar or you can simply start making different choices."
