The Online Advantage

- Online classes allow for flexibility. Attendance is flexible, but not optional. You must attend class each week but can choose to do it at a time that's convenient for you. So, if you're a morning person, go ahead and get up at 4:30 to get that assignment completed. Stay in your PJs – we'll never know.

- Save time and money. Consider drive time and gas costs. It's easier to work classes around your life than life around your classes. Plus, with the money you save on driving to a campus, you can buy new clothes for your new career.

- You're not alone. You get plenty of interaction with classmates. At the beginning of class, you are asked to introduce yourself to your fellow classmates and then throughout the class you will discuss several topics with them.

- If you have children, online classes allow you to still be a parent while working towards a degree. People often never start or quit college because they don't see how they can do it all. It doesn't have to be that way. Online classes will allow you the flexibility you need to care for your family, work, have a life, and still get a great education.
