Trina Turk Unveils Latest Collection

TRINA TURK'S Fall 2013 collection signals a distinct brand evolution as the sleek and chic currents of contemporary California style become her focus. Her signature west-coast optimism has been infused with a richly refined approach to construction, detail and print. The result is a sophisticated collection full of striking new silhouettes, both easy and unforgettable.

Rich color and sumptuous texture are key elements. Elegant hues of black plum, cognac, saffron, oxblood, lake and russet are found throughout the collection in luxurious, elevated fabrications.

"We are moving in an exciting new design direction. We have the same design philosophy we've always had, but we are approaching it differently today than we have in the past." - Trina Turk

Fall Happenings at Highland Park Village

Fall is a busy time here at Highland Park Village, and we are thrilled to share some of our upcoming news and events:

-Highland Park Village is proud to announce the opening of Village Kitchen and Toko V, formerly known as Village Marquee Grill & Bar. The space has been renovated to a laid back, inviting atmosphere, and the menus have been revamped with a number of new dishes. The ground floor is home to Chef Andre Natera's lunch and dinner creations, and the second floor, Toko V, will debut this month as an Asian and sushi restaurant. Click here for the dining menus.

-Saint Laurent is hosting a special event with Cattle Barons Ball on Tuesday, September 10th, in which 10% of sales will benefit the American Cancer Society.

-Be on the lookout for a mention about Gerald Tomlin Antiques in Architectural Digest this fall. The Highland Park Village antique shop will be featured as one of the best sources of fine antiques in the southwest.

-Speaking of magazines... Keep an eye out for the October launch of our fall magazine with cover model Jessica Stam! The new issue will feature a behind-the-scenes exclusive at Paris Fashion Week and showcase looks from some of our soon-to-open stores.
