

The main features designed into the pen are the subtractive clip and stylus tip. Through research it was determined that approximately twenty percent of customers actually use the clip feature. In order to reduce part count, and ultimately price to manufacture, the decision was made to incorporate the clip into the pen body as a single piece offering the same stock features as before. For dual function, we wanted to give writers the ability to transfer from paper to tablet with the same product.

