

Final Render

The final solution for the POP display is to have the Loot Crate logo prominently displayed at about eye level. Just under the header the art asset and ad copy displaying how the company works will be displayed. The product placed within the display will be a gift card system much like the one currently being used. To differentiate between the subscription types each plan will be represented by a different color.

