

Interviews were conducted with 13 men who regularly attend home poker tournaments to determine what were main issues with home games and what improvements were desired.

Games are often interrupted when players leave the table to get beverages; incorporating a fridge into the table design would alleviate this problem.

Many players use their phones and other devices to play music or to pass the time when they are not in a hand; incorporating USB ports and a small space for storing devices and personal items would help this.