

APP DESIGN

The first step in creating the app that would accompany the GPS tracking device was building the structure tree of how the app would function. I sought inspiration from other popular applications. My main goal was to keep it simple.

My first iteration of the user interface used hexagons for all the actions. I decided to move away from this design and focus on an app that was very familiar so use would be simple to even the novice user.