

Final Product

The final product came out to be a full bar frame that would curve around and snug itself between the wall and the washcloth rack. The weight of the rack itself would further wedge itself to the wall. The shelves are 5" in distance between one another so there's room to fit small bathroom items.

