

CAMP STOVE

Contemporary camp stoves are now frequently very sculptural and unusually shaped, having numerous small components that can be lost during ordinary outdoor use. The concept for this camp stove was to have fewer multipurpose pieces that could all be packed away within a container that doubled as cookware when in use. Even the standard gas bottle would store inside. Components would be finished in bright anodization for better outdoor visibility.

